

Course Title	Psychology of Interviewing	Duration	Three Days	Advanced Investigations
Aim	If you interview people on a regular basis, you'll understand how it can sometimes be a real challenge! You want to build trust, engage with the interviewee, get the best information from them and spot when they might not be telling the truth. It's easy to see that the most important skill is to be able to get inside the interviewee's head. Don't come on the course unless you want to master rapport building, learn how you can change language to your advantage, read patterns of behaviour and even tell how the interviewee is recalling memory. Don't just settle for good, become a first class interviewer.
Prerequisites	It's important that delegates have experience of interviewing, though not necessarily Under Caution – so long as they're comfortable talking to people!
